

Helps create greener homes and buildings by giving consumers the information they trust and automation needed to reduce consumption and save money.

It's the real-time provider of accurate information on all energy sources in the home, building consumer trust, helping manage the grid, and leading to better energy usage.

